

Description of design:

Remodel village spirit Coruscate elderly value

With rapid urbanization of China, the trend of young rural workers stepping into urban living for themselves is popular, however they have to leave the elder and children alone in the village. And the hollowing village has been the most concerned issue in rural community. We take Fujian province rural community as object of study which located in southeastern China, and watch the guarded elder and children living in the traditional Fujian Tulou. After rebuilding Tulou community, we try to excavate the vitality and energy in the community. We follow the low tech rebuilding concept to remold the new Tulou fitting in the local culture and environment with satisfaction in modern living functions. The new planning and design will enhance the physical space quality in original community. On the other hand, it will lead the future development to attract the young worker back home and rebuild normal society constructing and order, with excavating the value of tulou and increasing new economy growth pattern in rural community.
